"Dear Institute..."

Candid commentaries from candidates in psychoanalytic training

Edited By Himanshu Agrawal

Inspired by Fred Busch's 'Dear Candidate', This book is a collection of commentaries by 40 psychoanalysts-in training spanning across 29 different countries, shedding light on the state of contemporary psychoanalysis-its training, practice and relevance. Each contributor shares a piece of their mind-and their heart- about the trials and tribulations of the process of psychoanalytic training- what they cherished, what they loathed, why they spoke up, why they dropped out. This book is an important read for both prospective candidates as well as veteran psychoanalysts and institutional leaders.

"In 'Dear Institute...', Himanshu Agrawal brings together an international collective of analysts-in-formation who offer us informative, thought-provoking, courageous accounts of their experience of psychoanalytic training. Both the structure of the book and the individual contributions integrate past and present, internal and external, individual and institutional points of view. A short history of the contributor's institute is shared at the beginning of each piece. The institute's current contributions to, and sometimes interferences with, the formation of a developing analyst are portrayed. The sum of the book's parts inspires a serious look at the ingredients of training, formal and informal, that contribute to the formation of curious, creative, rigorous graduates. This book is a must read for analysts involved in psychoanalytic training and an enticing roadmap for those who consider becoming a psychoanalyst."

Harriet Wolfe, MD president, International Psychoanalytical Association
