13th European Psychoanalytic Film Festival

The theme of the festival is PASSION.

Passion disturbs. Complex and compelling, it disrupts reason, unsettles order, and defies containment.

The word 'passion' is derived from the Latin root patior, meaning 'to suffer' or 'to undergo.' Sharing its origin with 'patient' and 'passive,' it is experienced as an overwhelming force imposed upon us and, seeming to be beyond our control, it is akin to madness. Passion is not defined by its object: its essence is excess.

Like Hope (EPFF11) and Journey (EPFF12), Passion is not a psychoanalytic concept, yet it runs like a red thread through the work of Freud from the seething cauldron of the unconscious to the life and death drives.

In the films we have chosen for the festival, contemporary European filmmakers explore passion in its myriad forms: in the passionate suffering of mourning, in the passion for truth or in impossible love. It is the intensity and urgency of feeling that unites them all.

It was the twin passions for film and psychoanalysis of Andrea Sabbadini (1950-2025) that inspired him to create this biennial event and we celebrate his life and work in the opening afternoon of this, the 13th festival.

FRIDAY 13TH NOVEMBER

12.45 PM - 8.45 PM

Friday's programme is dedicated to the life and work of Andrea Sabbadini (1950–2025), Director of the European Psychoanalytic Film Festival from 2001 to 2019. His vision was instrumental in shaping the festival's distinctive engagement with cinema and psychoanalysis, and his influence continues to resonate throughout its programme.

The evening will feature a selection of films presented in tribute to Sabbadini's legacy, including Cinema Paradiso (Giuseppe Tornatore, Italy, 1988). Together, these works reflect themes and cinematic approaches closely connected to his contribution to the festival.

The programme will conclude with a panel discussion reflecting on Sabbadini's life and work, followed by a drinks reception.
